POLICE UNABLE TO CONTROL THOSE WHO USE WITCH HAZEL

The Use of Witch-hazel and Extracts Is Becoming General in and Around Maysville and Officers Are Unable to Control Its Sale or Use.

Although one man has been killed by the use of witch-hazel as a drink in Maysville since the first of July when all saloons were closed, this object lesson does not seem to have been very effective on a great many drinkers in this section for most every day drunks are seen on the street and when arrests are made and the drunks are required to tell what they drank in the courts, they usually report that they were either drinking witch-hazel or lemon extract.

Police and night watchmen report finding empty pop bottles and empty extract bottles as well as empty bottles which smell of witch-hazel in door steps most every morning early when they are leaving their beats for home and the situation has become very serious in Maysville.

Witch-hazel is being sold in local hardware and harness stores at a very low price and it is even reported that there are ignorant men, who probably think there is a license attached to its sale, "bootlegging" witch-hazel on the sly. There are no laws to touch the sale of either witch-hazel or extracts and the police have quite a job on their hands to handle the situation in which they now find themselves.

LOCAL HEALTH OFFICER NAMED DELEGATE TO NATIONAL MEET

Dr. J. H. Rice Commissioned a Representative From Kentucky Health Meeting—Governor Discusses State's Health Conditions.

Dr. J. H. Rice, Mason County's Health Officer, has been honored by Governor Black by being named one of the state's representatives at the meeting of the American Public Health Association's annual meeting at New Orleans, La., on October 27-30.

In commissioning Dr. Rice, Governor Black goes into detail in regard to the health condition of Kentucky. His letter follows:

Frankfort, Ky., September 25, 1919.
My dear Doctor:

Kentucky, in common with the rest of the world, suffering from the ravages of war and of the terrible pandemic of influenza last year, realizes as it never did before, the value of the health and lives of its people.

A report of the Bureau of Vital Statistics to the State Board of Health for 1918, has just been placed on my desk, which should become familiar to every well-wisher of our people. It shows, in addition to the 12,677 deaths from influenza and pneumonia, that there were 4,662 deaths from tuberculosis; 1,112 from diarrhoea in babies, and 791 in older persons; 625 deaths from typhoid fever; 249 from diphtheria; 280 from measles, and 825 from whooping cough; that 184,833 of our people suffered the illness, untold anxiety, as well as the financial loss from having had one of these preventable diseases during the year; and the plain figures of these official records indicate that there have been 1,222,010 cases of these eight diseases under treatment by physicians in this State in the last eight years, during which such records have been kept.

The accuracy of these records is cruelly confirmed by an inspection of the official records of our draft board examinations last year. These indicate that practically eight out of every thousand of our citizens have tuberculosis; that 37 out of each 1000 of the men examined by the draft boards, have venereal diseases; that 5 out of each 1000 have trachoma; that the teeth of 4 out of each 1000 are so defective, and that 7 in each 1000 have such defective vision, as to render them totally unfit; and that 1 in each 5000 are drug addicts.

These invoices of the health of our people are appalling, and it is the duty of every citizen and, especially of every official, to make it possible for you as a Health Officer, to so functionate that these sick and death rates may be rapidly reduced. No more important subject demands the consideration of the Commonwealth.

I understand, of course, that the physicians of the State earn their livelihood in the grand work of ameliorating the condition of the sick. It is our duty now to develop to its highest efficiency the specialty in medicine of medicine of the prevention of illness. Fortunately for our people, I believe, Kentucky's entire political system is based on local self government. The last General Assembly recognized this in authorizing the Fiscal Courts or the people of each county, to constitute a County Health Department, which will enable you as a competent Health Officer, assisted by a public health nurse, to devote all of your time to this work.

During my administration as Governor of this Commonwealth, I propose to devote as much of my time and energy as possible to bettering the health conditions of the men, women and children of Kentucky.

With this idea in view, and to emphasize to you people and officials, the importance of the position you hold, I am hereby commissioning you as a delegate to the meeting of the American Public Health Association at New Orleans, October 27-30 next, when these problems are to be studied.

I appreciate your service to the State and stand ready to help you in every way I can.

Very truly yours,
JAMES D. BLACK.

FORMER OHIO STATER IN THE WORLD SERIES

Hervey McClelland, Former Member of the Lexington Colts, Is With Chicago White Sox This Year.

The Lexington Herald says: Base ball fans in Lexington remember fondly "them good old days" when bush league ball was seen here in the form of contests between the Colts and other clubs in the Ohio State League.

Recalling the park out on North Broadway and narrowing their recollection down to that part of the infield between second base and the third station, they probably find it easy to bring back a vision of a certain peppy young shortstop who very seldom let 'em get by.

Hervey McClelland is hauling down a share of the World's Series coin this year if the White Sox cop the American League flag and there is little doubt that they will. "From Bush League to World's Series," or, "The Young Shortstop's Rise," tells the baseball story of Hervey McClelland.

As a boy he started his career in Cynthiana, where he gained recognition as star of his high school team. He was signed up by the Colts' manager. When the Ohio State League broke up, Hervey went to the Western League. His next jump was to the "big time". With the White Sox, although he is not often in the lineup, McClelland will come in for a share of the World's Series receipts.

FORMER DOVER GIRL IS MISSING FROM HER CINCINNATI HOME

Irene Worthington, Nine-Year-Old Old Daughter of Edward Worthington Missing Since Sunday.

Another mysterious disappearance in which Mason county people will be greatly interested is the disappearance on last Sunday morning at her home in Cincinnati of little Irene Worthington, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Worthington, former residents of Dover, this country.

Sunday morning the girl told her mother she wanted to go to a picture show.

"I want 11 cents, mother," she said. "There is no show around here," her mother said.

"Yes, there is. I know where one is," the girl replied.

Her mother gave her the money. That was the last time the girl was seen by her mother, who lives at 358 Martin street.

Throughout Sunday night the mother waited. All day Monday, and still no sign of the girl. "And then Monday night police were notified.

The girl's father, Edward Worthington, has searched the city for trace of the girl, but with no success.

Police are asking:

Why, if the girl intended going to a show, did she wrap her silk dress in paper and take it along?

Why did she tell James Ringo, a friend of the family, who was at the home Sunday, that she was "going visiting"?

On this theory police turned their investigation to Dayton, Ky., with the hope the child went there to visit an aunt. But she did not go there.

They inquired in the vicinity of Fourth and Mill streets, where the Worthingtons formerly lived.

They learned from the mother that a certain woman who lives near the Worthingtons' old home, has made threats against the child and once tried to get authorities to place her in a home.

Failing there, police turned their attention to New Richmond, O., and Dover, Ky., two former homes of the girl. From those places no word of her appearance has been received.

Once before, police learned, the girl was away from home.

Police asked children of the neighborhood if Irene Worthington said anything to them of her intention of going "visiting", and they learned from Wilma Boehm, 8, who lives up-

BIG ROBBERY OF U. S. MAILS DISCOVERED

$240,000 Stolen From the Mails In Chicago on Last Thursday—Arrests Are Made.

Chicago, September 23.—Three men, one of them John Weida, clerk in the Chicago postoffice, who is said to have planned the robbery, were arrested here, early today, charged with stealing $240,000, a shipment of $415,000, last Thursday, from the Federal Reserve Bank here to the Standard Oil company of Indiana at Whiting, Indiana.

Of the stolen funds $93,620 was recovered. The remainder, according to an alleged confession of two of the men, was abandoned at the outskirts of Chicago when the automobile in which they were returning from Whiting broke down.

A "piece of police luck" is pointed to as responsible for the arrest of the men. Chicago city detectives unearthed the postal robbery when two of the men, Leb and Walter Phillips, brothers, 25 and 20 years old, respectively, were arrested in connection with the robbery of a saloon in which $500 was obtained.

A fourth man, said to be the owner of a small farm near Chicago, was being sought early today. Police say they believe most of the missing money was buried on his property.

ADVANCE GUARD OF OLD SOLDIERS HERE

Uncle Matt Chisholm, of Newport, and Alonzo Seaman, of Norman, Okla., and Mr. James Molen arrived here this afternoon as the advance guard of the Civil War Veterans who meet here tomorrow in their annual reunion. Mr. Seaman carried a silk American flag made by a granddaughter and which he carried in the veteran's parade last year.

Rev. A. F. Stahl has returned from a ten days' visit with his parents in Kenton, Ohio.

Stairs, at 958 Martin street, that she said she was not going to church Sunday morning. This caused police to conclude the missing girl had completed plans for a trip.

When the girl left home she wore a checkered gingham dress with a white ribbon in her hair and another ribbon around her waist. Her hat was white. She wore slippers.

Now she may be wearing a blue silk dress trimmed in white lace for this was the dress she took with her.

She had started to school, but illness forced her to remain home for several days, the mother said.

CIVIL WAR VETERANS WILL BE GIVEN GREAT WELCOME TOMORROW

Survivors of the Tenth and the Sixteenth Kentucky Regiments Meet at Beechwood Park Tomorrow in Annual Reunion—Large Crowd Expected Here.

There are but few of the old veterans of the Sixteenth and the Tenth Kentucky Civil War regiments living but the great majority of those surviving will be in Maysville tomorrow for the annual reunion which will be held all day at Beechwood Park. A special invitation has been extended this year to the children and the grand children of the veterans to attend the reunion for as the ranks of the old veterans are thinning, it is hoped and expected that the children and grand children will step in and keep this historic old association in existence.

Mrs. W. H. Hook, of Peebles, Ohio, the Secretary of the Association, writes that she has been assured by many of the old veterans that they would be on hand for the day's meeting. Judge J. C. Stevenson, prominent jurist of West Union, Adams county, is expected to make the chief address and there will be several other local speakers. Dinner will be served on the grounds to the old soldiers and there will be a very interesting music program in charge of the Boggs Brothers, of Maysville and Aberdeen.

The entire public is always invited to the sessions of the association and it is expected that there will be several soldiers of the late war present to join with the veterans in the celebration of the day and this may be taken as an occasion for an explanation of the American Legion, an organization which is being perfected by the soldiers of the late war.

The association's meeting will begin Wednesday morning at about 10 o'clock and will continue through the day until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Maysville residents should hang out the flag in honor of the old boys in blue who fought so bravely to maintain the union.

BLIGHT OF STANLEYISM

The insistence by Republican speakers and by Republican newspapers that Stanleyism is one of the foremost issues of this campaign in Kentucky is extremely distasteful to the Democratic press.

That is not surprising. If there is anything that the Democratic newspapers and the Democratic machine managers would like to blot out from their memories it is the record made by Owsley Stanley as Governor of Kentucky; but, like the famous ghost, it will not down. It rears its ugly head at every feast and haunts the wakings as well as the sleeping hours of every man who is directly interested in the success of the Democratic State ticket.

One reason for this is that Judge Carroll declared only a few weeks ago that Mr. Black was "surrounded by the worst of the Stanley gang." If that is true—and Judge Carroll is an honorable man—the machinery set in motion by Governor Stanley will move along in its old accustomed way through the Black administration, should Judge Black be elected.

Four years ago the Democratic party in Kentucky promised the people better government—more economical government. This year the nominees of that party must stand or fall by the record made.

During three years and four months of the Stanley administration the collections made for the expenses of the State were more than six millions of dollars greater than the collections made under the preceding Democratic administration for the same period, and yet the outstanding and unpaid claims against the State were more than a million dollars in excess of the outstanding obligations of the Commonwealth at the close of a similar period under Governor McCreary.

These figures are eloquent. An exhibit of the State's expenditures under Governor Stanley would make mighty interesting reading.

There is another side of the picture. Public servants who deliberately neglect the unfortunate children of the State, or employ funds appropriated for their benefit to make places for political favorites, are less to be respected than men who juggle funds intended for other purposes.

That the charitable and corrective institutions of Kentucky were used by the Stanley administration for the promotion of partisan politics is a fact so notorious that no Democratic newspaper, no Democratic speaker, has had the courage to deny it. The Democratic platform, recently adopted, did not deny the charges made by the Republican platform on this subject.

It is not believed that the great body of Democratic voters in Kentucky approve of the acts of the Stanley administration. They are interested in wise and economical management of the affairs of the State, they desire due observance of all days, they are opposed to wholesale pardoning of convicted murderers, they would protect and educate the defective childhood which has been placed under the care of the public, but it is not plain that they can yet put their trust in the men who have been most influential at Frankfort in recent years and who, according to as good a Democrat as Judge Carroll, still "surround" the throne at the State House—Lexington Leader.

RISING BUSINESS BAROMETER

The "barometer of business" is going up again. On June 30 the unfilled orders on the books of the United States Steel Corporation amounted to 4,892,000 tons. That was in itself a very considerable tonnage. Still, it represented a low-water mark for recent years, and so was discouraging. Orders had been falling off since the signing of the armistice. It was feared that they might go much lower.

But the tide turned. On July 31 the unfilled tonnage had risen to 5,578,000, and on August 31 it had jumped to 530,000 tons more, the respectable total of 6,108,000. It is said to be rising still more rapidly now, and nobody will be surprised if by mid-winter it reaches the big war-time record.

In one respect this is unfortunate. It means delay in getting orders filled, and so means that many branches of industry will be retarded in getting their full stride. But there will be little lamentation over that, in view of the solid grounds for optimism found in this report.

Bigger steel orders mean more buying all along the line, more construction, more extensions of manufacture and trade, more work, more busyness for the Nation, and, in a word, more prosperity.

The "economic reconstruction" of which so much has been said has really begun. There are evidences of it on all sides. While legislators and theorizers have been talking, industry has been reconstructing itself. It will continue, at an increased pace, if labor and capital deal fairly with each other.

It is just because the trial of the former kaiser in London will be fair that he objects to it.—Philadelphia Enquirer.

POPULAR DEMAND ON CONGRESS TO ADOPT SYSTEM

National Security League Canvass Reveals Strong Public Sentiment For Prompt Enactment of This Reform.

New York, September 23.—That public sentiment throughout the country is rapidly crystallizing for an insistent demand upon Congress for the prompt adoption of genuine National Budget System, is indicated in a statement issued today by the National Security League's "Committee on Congress." This committee is conducting a nation-wide canvas on behalf of this reform and announces the existence of strong support of the Budget System in all parts of the country.

Nearly all the important national commercial organizations have endorsed the Budget System and are preparing to join with the National Security League in an intensive campaign of education to create a demand upon Congress for its enactment into law. The leaders in this movement will be the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, the National Association of Credit Men, the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, and the Merchants' Association of New York.

D. A. Skinner, of Washington, Assistant Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, writes the National Security League as follows:

"We are gratified to note the active interest of the National Security League in this subject. For several years, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has urged the adoption of a Budget System for the national government. You can count on our cooperation in this business reform of national importance."

J. H. Tregoe, of this city, Secretary and Treasurer of the National Association of Credit Men, writes:

"The National Association of Credit Men is dedicated absolutely to the adoption of an efficient Budget System, out of which should come numerous economies of great value to the nation at a time when costs are running so very high and are occasioned in a large measure by the taxes and the expenses attending their collection."

BUY FERTILIZER WITH GREAT CARE SAYS BULLETIN

Farmers Purchasing Fertilizer Should Select it With Great Care Says Farmers Bulletin.

Every farmer who is in the market for fertilizers for autumn or spring use, should keep posted as to what he is buying. Complete fertilizers vary in their make up and the farmer ought to buy what his land needs and not have to pay for expensive ingredients which will do his land no good.

The farmer can keep posted as to what each fertilizer on the market contains by sending for Bulletin No. 219, "Commercial Fertilizers", which has been issued by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington.

The following extract from the bulletin will give the farmer an idea of how many brands of fertilizers are now on the market and what each contains:

"There were 724 different brands of commercial fertilizers registered during the year 1918. Of these 320 were complete fertilizers, or fertilizers containing all three of the essential ingredients, namely; phosphoric acid, nitrogen and potash (non-acidulated bone and potash mixtures are not counted in this item,) 125 acid phosphates or superphosphates, 169 nitrogenous super-phosphates, 45 acid phosphate and potash mixtures, and 65 bones, tankage and non-acidulated bone and potash mixtures. Samples sent by manufacturers of the various brands registered have been analyzed, as well as samples collected by our inspectors from fertilizers found on sale in the State and those sent in by farmers."

Youth Wins Again

The veteran breeders in Durocs who showed in the Junior Sow Pig class at the State Fair, are wondering what happened to them. The first, second and third prizes went to a girl and two boys who were members of the Pig Clubs of the State. These three prizes were taken in a hotly contested ring with 37 gilts showing. An eleven year old boy got the Junior Championship in the Hampshire class with a Hampshire gilt.

Standardization Spreads

One breed of purebred chickens for each county, is the aim of the standardization work of the Extension Division of the College of Agriculture. This work has spread rapidly until 85 counties are now developing this plan. Almost a half million eggs from purebred hens were secured for setting in these 85 counties last spring. Three-quarters of a million purebred eggs will probably be sold and distributed in Kentucky during the spring of 1920.

Long Lines Waited

The corridors of "old State" were crowded last week with young men and young women waiting to enroll for work this season. The prospects for a big year were everywhere present as the restless wartime activities of last year were out of the way. The big registration of the first few days of this school year showed that a material increase of the student body was certain at the State University for 1919-20.

WILSON'S WAR IN RUSSIA
Washington, September 18.—(Special correspondence)—Arranging the President for usurpation of power in sending troops to Russia and keeping them there, Representative William E. Mason, of Illinois, in a speech in the House, recently, said in part:

"War is not yet over in Russia. Whose war is it? Who declared war in Russia? Was not Russia our ally? Is she not our friend? The President of the United States declares war. He takes the boys from my district, without any right, without any let or hindrance, without any authority from Congress. By the newspaper I read 23 were killed last week in Siberia. Four hundred and eighty were killed in the Archangel sector. War in Siberia. Whose war is it? Have you voted for a declaration of war? Do you believe under the Constitution of the United States that the President has the power to take the boys of this country and send them into a peaceful nation to take part in a civil war there in progress? I am not for the Bolsheviks, and I am not for the spawn of the Czar under Kolchak. Neither one of them is under my flag. Neither of them wears the uniform of my country. But 4,000 boys from my district are there, not the sons of rich men. I want to say if the President had a boy there, even if the son-in-law of the President were among them—in the Y. M. C. A. business—it would not take him long to take them out of Siberia and start them home. (Applause.)

That is the truth about it. They are my constituents. Their petitions come in, hour by hour, and this morning comes a dispatch saying that 23 of the Yankees were killed. Killed by whose order? That of the President of the United States, who, believing that he was right when he was a professor and wrote that the President had the right of initiative and the right to control the power of all initiative—I have quoted his words—that the President of the United States has virtually the power to control absolutely the foreign affairs of the United States.

"What military astuteness is it to send 15,000 American boys there in an attempt to control the affairs where if any one of these dirty factions agrees with the other, if the Bolsheviks should meet tomorrow the Kolchaks and, after they had got all the money they can get out of the United States, should come to an agreement, they would turn and murder your boys and mine as quick as they would kill a cat or a dog. And you know it, and I want them to come out of there, and they have got to come out of there. (Applause.)

"The resolution which I have offered cities the fact that the Congress of the United States has power to make rules and regulations governing the armed and naval forces of the United States. You have the power to bring them out. I ask you by this resolution to order them out. Do not be afraid, in the name of God, to exercise the power of the legislator when the Executive usurps your power.

"I do not care for the money that has been stolen. I do not care for the $150,000 which the President handed to Barney Baruch over there in the peace conference. It is dirt. But the blood of the boys of the United States cries to you. They are blood of our blood and bone of our bone. They are American boys. They are poor boys. They are the sons of poor parents. You have no right to keep them there and stave them and kill them to gratify the whims of the President of the United States, who seeks to make himself king of the United States, and not President. (Applause.)

BEACH HARGIS, PAROLE VIOLATOR, PAWNS WATCH; WAS IN HAMILTON, OHIO

Frankfort, Ky.—Governor Black Thursday issued a warrant of arrest for Martin C. Perkins, under arrest in Williamsburg and wanted in Hamilton, O., on the charge of burglary and grand larceny. The papers were brought to Kentucky by Albert Mueller, Hamilton. He had with him a watch which he bought in a pawn shop in Hamilton which had belonged to Beach Hargis. Mueller did not know that the watch had been the property of Hargis until after he made the purchase. When he opened the case he saw engraved on it "Beach Hargis, from mother." Hargis is a parole violator and is wanted by the prison officials. His present address is unknown. The fact that he had been in Hamilton was made known by the pawning of his watch.

HURT IN RUNAWAY

Cynthiana, Ky.—Will Thomas Light, superintendent of the Harrison County Infirmary, was injured when a runaway horse hitched to a wagon struck his buggy on Main street, throwing him to the ground. Mr. Light suffered injury to his back, but the seriousness of his condition has not yet been determined. He was taken to the New Harrison hospital. The horse became frightened on Bridge street and ran two squares, striking J. L. Harte's automobile on Bridge street, causing considerable damage. He turned into Main street and ran two blocks before he was stopped. The driver remained on the wagon, but lost control of the horse soon after he started to run.

The cross roads oracle: Now that a whole raft of farmers can afford to own automobiles, they can certainly afford to send their youngsters to college if they want an education. Money put into a machine can't ever pay like that that's invested in trained brains.

STRIKERS AND POLICE CLASH AS MILLS GRIND ON

Many Injured in Several Clashes at Steel Plants in Second Day

Pittsburg, Pa., September 23.—The forces of organized labor and the United States Steel Corporation still were struggling Tuesday for control of America's great "Iron Valley" as the nation-wide strike of steelworkers entered its second day.

Following a night of scattered struggles between police and strikers and of bloodshed in steel cities crowds of workmen again were at the gates of the mills early today.

At Farrell, Pa., one man was killed and two wounded when shots were exchanged between company police and strikers during a riot at the plant of the American Steel and Wire Co. Another man was killed in an argument with a striker.

At Newcastle, seven persons, including two women, were wounded during a similar outbreak. Carnegie Steel Co. officials assert the fighting followed an attempt of strike sympathizers to break into the mill by tearing down the fence.

City officials have asked for a detachment of state police at Farrell. Rioting also broke out at Youngstown and other smaller centers, but the big Pittsburgh district remained almost unanimously quiet.

From Duquesne, Clairton, Homestead, Braddock and other points in the Pittsburgh district, police reported men going to work as usual early today. At Clairton it was stated three times as many men reported for work in the mills today as were on hand yesterday. From Homestead also it was stated the number entering the mills was greater than yesterday. Police of Braddock said double the number entered the mills. No disorder was reported from any of these towns.

PEARL HAD TOO MUCH WITCH-HAZEL

TYPICAL MOUNTAIN SCENERY IN PLAY

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" to Be Seen at Washington Wednesday Typically Mountain.

In Eugene Walter's dramatization of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," the widely read novel by John Fox, Jr., the author of "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," you see presented on the stage the typical mountain community of the Virginia hills. The primitiveness of the people is shown in all its picturesqueness and charm and you will love June and her kinsfolk far more on the stage than you did when you wandered with her through the pages of Mr. Fox's delightful story. In her characterization of June, Miss Jane Ware emphasizes the wild mountain girl's longing for the knowledge of the world outside of her mountain environment and which is after all, the strongest motive of mankind. This dramatic success comes to the Washington Theater Wednesday evening.

Farmers throughout this section are pleased with what rain they have thus far received but say that it will take much more rain yet to meet their needs and to fill the creeks with stock water.

City officials have asked for a detachment of state police at Farrell. Rioting also broke out at Youngstown and other smaller centers, but the big Pittsburgh district remained almost unanimously quiet.

From Duquesne, Clairton, Homestead, Braddock and other points in the Pittsburgh district, police reported men going to work as usual early today.
